Hendricks discusses Washington trip at MAC meeting

By DAVID SNOW

The Eagle Post

Several members of the Christian County Chamber of Commerce Military Affairs Committee are preparing for the annual trip to Washington, D.C., as part of the Citizens for Fort Campbell group.

Information regarding this trip was mentioned at the monthly MAC meeting on Feb. 1 at the Commerce Center in Hopkinsville.

Citizens for Fort Campbell — made up of prominent citizens from Christian County and Montgomery County, Tenn. — visit the nation's capital as advocates for Fort Campbell. They speak with legislators and Congressional committee members to let them know the importance of Fort Campbell to this area and to encourage them to continue to fund the Army installation.

Acting MAC director and CCCC president Carter Hendricks said that this year's trip will take place Feb. 29 to March 2 and includes a visit to the Pentagon hosted by former 101st Airborne Division (Air Assault) commander Lt. Gen. John F. Campbell.

"There will be 24 delegates going from the Christian County side, the Kentucky side," Hendricks said. "That's about the number that we typically have, and we appreciate having a good, strong showing of support.

"We are wrapping up the final details of our logistical planning."

Hendricks said that the group has met with Fort Campbell officials to get a list of projects to advocate during the trip.

Chamber hires MAC director

The Christian County Chamber of Commerce announced the hiring of Kensley McLellan as the new director of military affairs.

McLellan holds a master's and bachelor's degrees from the University of Tennessee, with majors in marketing and advertising and human resources management.

She is married to Maj. Scott McLellan, who serves with the 4th Brigade Combat Team (Curahees) at Fort Campbell.

McLellan's will begin her duties on Feb. 20.

"I look forward to continuing the hard work of recruiting more military families to call Christian County their home," she said.

McLellan takes the position vacated by Kelli Pendleton, who resigned to take a similar position with Cumberland Hall Hospital.

Other schools throughout Christian County as well as across the nation will take part in this event.

After gathering their donations, students will then go to work earning their donations with the main jump-rope event, to be held later this month at each school. Pembroke Elementary School will have its jumping event on Feb. 24, while South Christian Elementary School will announce their jumping day at a later date.

"On the day of the event, we will have a lot of jumping rope, some dancing and just some fun little activities for the kids with some music — things like that," said PES physical education teacher David Baker.

"This is something that we have supported for many years," said SCES principal Janie Giles. "We love the idea that kids get the opportunity to raise money for such a good cause — and for the exercise!"

Oak Grove wants to protect citizens from synthetic drugs

I love those old movies in which actors like James Cagney portray such characters as John Dillinger and Al “Scarface” Capone and several others that romanced the streets of Chicago and elsewhere in the late ’20s. These machine gun-toting gangsters ran crime syndicates, robbed banks, sold heroin and opium.

Most had families and parents. These guys were far from perfect but they did not sell drugs to teenagers and very young adults. Back then, some honor existed even among gangsters, but they were still “Public Enemy Number One.”

Compared to the present day synthetic drug epidemic these guys wore halos. As awful as the gangsters were, they did not place their lethal crosshairs on teenagers and young people in order to make huge profits selling deadly drugs.

Even the “mob” had more self restraint than the drug dealers of present day, both legal and illegal.

The chemists that conjure up this toxic waste are very good at what they do and no doubt very rich, but also very corrupt and ruthlessly self-absorbed. They hide behind Lady Justice by constantly altering the chemical make-up or the packaging of designer drugs, making it nearly impossible to outlaw the toxic waste. They are the most heinous of murderers, with no regard to the damage they inflict.

Of course, no one outside of the professional chemist field understands the make-up of these designer drugs. The ingredients are extremely difficult to analyze and sometimes hard to pronounce.

Do you know what “methylenedioxypyrovalerone” is? It is (MDPV) for short, also known as “legal Cocaine”. They are marketed under common names such as “Bath Salts” or “incense.” According to some senior military officers they even have one called the AK-47.

So, what are our options?

We could look the other way and pretend this is someone else’s problem, maybe something that happens to someone else’s family and not within our own. But wait ... our young people are just starting out on life’s journey, just spreading their wings and trying new things; our soldiers are coping with post traumatic stress from war; or our neighbor next door just needs something to take the edge off.

No, we can’t turn a blind eye to those in our society that need us to stand firm. Now it is getting personal! That’s just where we want to keep the problem ... personal!

Last Sunday morning I tuned to WHOP (98.7 FM) radio to hear certain comments made about synthetic drugs. State Rep. Myron Dossett explained one of the problems the Kentucky Legislature was having in dealing with the synthetic drug problem centered around the fact that the legislative body only meets once a year.

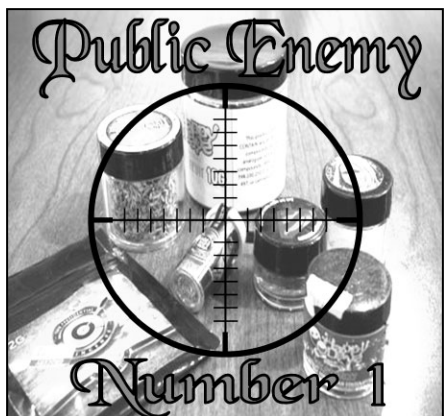

Even if the legislative body took positive action in passing a bill into law to deal with the current problem, the manufacturers of this toxic waste would alter the chemical content and immediately introduce it back on the market under a different name.

The Oak Grove legislative body meets the first and third Tuesday of each month and it has the legal ability and the moral fortitude to pass any ordinance in order to avoid an imminent hazard to the public safety of our beloved city.

Furthermore, in passing this ordinance we have taken steps to meet our obligations to protect the residents of Oak Grove and will continue our stand against the toxic waste that is being packaged as a legal product, by cretins with no respect for their fellow man.

MAYOR DAN POTTER

Society dependent upon phones, but they’ve made for bad manners

Smartphones may be the plague on this generation. Our concern that these phones are responsible for a significant decline in social manners grows with each passing day.

A few weeks ago, Karen and I had just flown into Nashville after visiting our son and his family in Florida, and decided to eat there before heading home. With an 80-minute wait facing us, we had time to observe the many other folks waiting for a table. It was astounding how many people were oblivious to everyone around them — they had heads down, sending text messages or checking e-mail.

But it hits closer to home, too. At a local restaurant in the past week, a couple at a table near us weren’t talking to each other — both had phones in hand, not communicating with each other.

My wife and I will celebrate our 39th anniversary this year, and we always have something to talk about.

I realize this probably sounds like an old fogey complaining that the world is just getting too deep into technology. Quite the contrary. Technology is great when used appropriately. But that means cell phones should be silenced in church or other venues when a ring would cause a disruption. And texting while involved in a conversation with someone is bad manners.

We’ve caught ourselves falling into the trap of allowing a cell phone to squeeze others out. When you’re involved in a conversation and your cell phone rings, the natural inclination is to answer the phone.

I’ve done it, and then regret it when I realize such an act doesn’t send a positive message to the person who stands in front of me. The caller should be the one who has to wait.

You can rationalize it all you want, but stopping a conversation with someone to read an incoming text or answer a cell phone is discourteous and bad manners.

Children’s logic...

“Give me a sentence about a public servant,” said a teacher.

The small boy wrote: “The fireman came down the ladder pregnant.”

The teacher took the lad aside to correct him. “Don’t you know what pregnant means?” she asked. “Sure,” said the young boy confidently. “It means carrying a child.”

A new hair salon opened up for business right across the street from the old established haircutter’s place.

The new competitors put up a big bold sign which read: “We give $7 haircuts!”

Not to be outdone, the old master barber put up his own sign: “We fix $7 haircuts.”

Grandparents’ experiences

• The woman’s young grandson called to wish her Happy Birthday. He asked how old she was, and she told him,

CHIP HUTCHESON
Chips Off The Old Block

62. After being quiet for a moment, he asked, “Did you start at 1?”

• After putting her grandchildren to bed, a grandmother changed into old slacks and a droopy blouse and proceeded to wash her hair. As she heard the children getting more and more rambunctious, her patience grew thin.

Finally, she threw a towel around her head and stormed into their room, putting them back to bed with stern warnings.

As she left the room, she heard the 3-year-old say with a trembling voice, “Who was that?”

4. A grandmother was telling her little granddaughter what her own childhood was like...

We used to skate outside on a pond I had a swing made from a tire; it hung from a tree in our front yard. We rode our pony. We picked wild raspberries in the woods.”

The little girl was wide-eyed, taking this all in. At last she said, “I sure wish I’d gotten to know you sooner!”

• A grandson asked, “Grandma, do you know how you and God are alike?” She mentally polished her halo and said, “No, how are we alike?”

“You’re both old,” he replied.

• A little girl was diligently pounding away on her grandfather’s word processor. She told him she was writing a story.

“What’s it about?” he asked.

“I don’t know,” she replied. “I can’t read.”

• The woman didn’t know if her granddaughter had learned her colors yet, so she decided to test her by pointing out something and asking what color it was.

She would tell her and was always correct. It was fun for the grandmother, so she continued. At last, the girl headed for the door, saying, “Grandma, I think you should try to figure out some of these, yourself!”

• When the man’s grandson asked me how old his grandfather was, he teasingly replied, “I’m not sure.”

“Look in your underwear, Grandpa,” he advised, “mine says I’m 4 to 6.”

• A second grader came home from school and said to her grandmother, “Grandma, guess what? We learned how to make babies today.”

The grandmother, more than a little surprised, tried to keep her cool. “That’s interesting,” she said, “how do you make babies?”

• A 6-year-old was asked where his grandma lived. “Oh,” he said, “she lives at the airport, and when we want her, we just go get her. Then, when we’re done having her visit, we take her back to the airport.”

• Opined one boy: “Grandpa is the smartest man on earth! He teaches me good things, but I don’t get to see him enough to get as smart as him!”

Much of legislature’s work unnoticed by press

The Kentucky Legislature convened its 2012 Regular Session a month ago with several topics of statewide importance on its agenda. Issues like redistricting and writing the state’s biennial budget have implications for every Kentuckian. They receive a lot of media attention — and our attention — as they should.

But another important task set before us during this and every session of the General Assembly is updating and improving state laws and policies of lesser dramatic scope, but ones that need attention nonetheless. While little of this work will be prominently headlined in the newspapers, included in the nightly TV news, or even get a quick passing mention on radio, it is still vitally important.

This week we recognized the State-proclaimed Disability Awareness Day, with the Capitol hosting a group of advocates for those with special needs. We are especially attentive to laws affecting the more than 850,000

JOEY PENDLETON

Kentuckians with disabilities.

We discussed measures to make practices fairer and more open to people with disabilities. For example, special-needs students who finish a modified course of study currently receive only a certificate of completion. We feel they deserve a diploma, too. The full Senate gave unanimous approval to award an alternative but actual diploma to students who complete an individualized high school curriculum.

We worked to create safeguards to protect livestock farmers. In 2010, a group of Kentucky farmers lost hundreds of thousands of dollars to the Eastern Livestock company bankruptcy. While banks scrambled to protect their assets in the fallout from that collapse, farmers were left holding bad checks.

The Senate passed Senate Bill 92, that would place stricter bonding and licensing requirements on livestock purchasers like Eastern Livestock. We approved (by a 32-3 vote) another bill that would create a livestock-seller’s lien to give farmers more legal security than they currently have in the process.

Other bills now going to the House for their consideration include Senate Bill 21, which would allow school districts to remain open on election days, providing that no school buildings are used as polling places. This will give school districts added flexibility in scheduling instructional and make-up days in their calendar.

Legislation I have mentioned from committee action in previous weeks is now gaining full Senate approval. Senate Bill 86 would allow interested high school students to graduate one year early. They would have to complete advanced coursework and maintain a minimum 3.2 GPA. Other provisions require students to meet benchmark scores on the ACT and statewide end-of-year exams.

If they choose to enroll at a two- or four-year college in the state the year following their early graduation, they would receive scholarship money based on the amount of funding their school district receives for per-pupil attendance. The bill allows for a recalculation of KEES assistance awards so students would not be penalized for graduating early.

None of these measures are especially flashy, and some may not even affect you or the great majority of Kentuckians. But they are meaningful to a number of our fellow citizens.

While one-third of this legislative session is now in the history books, the majority of its story is yet to be written. If you are not already involved in the issues and bills of interest to you, I encourage you to start now. Let me know your thoughts and concerns on the legislation impacting you.

Answers

Q: I got completely hooked on HBO's "Game of Thrones," and I can't wait until it returns for its second season. Would you know when that might be? — Brad F., via e-mail

A: Well, Brad, I just happen to have that little nugget of info — and I am willing to share. The next season of the medieval-fantasy series begins (no fooling) April 1 at 9 p.m., and like the first season, the second season will be 10 episodes long. And Lena Headey (who plays Cersei) tells us that season two will bring even more drama (Is that possible?). The show also stars Peter Dinklage as Tyrion, Emilia Clarke as Daenerys, Nikolai Coster-Waldau as Jaime, Kit Harington as Jon and Michelle Fairley as Catelyn.

Q: I'm confused: First I heard Marg Helgenberger is leaving "CSI" for good, then I heard she's not, and now I hear she is again. Can you clear this up for me? — Constance D., Newport, Conn.

A: I'll try. Marg, who left the top-rated CBS crime drama at the end of January, is pretty much gone — as a regular cast-member. However, her character's future has been left open so Marg can return for a guest appearance, if she wishes. Marg assures her fans that they haven't seen the last of Catherine Willows: "That was one of the reasons why it was a little easier for me to leave the show, because the producers said to me practically every day that the door is wide open. If I'm available and I'm up for it, you betcha."

Q: I remember seeing pictures of Julianne Moore in some entertainment magazines dressed up as Sarah

Julianne Moore as Sarah Palin

Palin. Was that for a movie? If so, when will it be out? I'd love to see it. — Margaret W., via e-mail

A: Julianne does indeed star as the 2008 vice-presidential hopeful in the HBO movie "Game Change," which is based on the 2010 book of the same name. The movie premieres on Saturday, March 10, and also stars Ed Harris as Sen. John McCain and Woody Harrelson as campaign chair Steve Schmidt, along with Peter MacNicol, Sarah Paulson and Ron Livingston. The movie will mainly track the actions of the Republican Party during the 2008 elections, while the book devotes equal time to both Republicans and Democrats.

Q: I am dying to find out who killed Rosie Larson! When will "The Killing" return? — Darla A., Portland, Ore.

A: Hang in there just a few more months, Darla! Sunday, April 1 marks the return of the suspense drama to AMC with a two-hour premiere starting at 8/7c. The following week, the series returns to its normal timeslot of 9/8c. If you need to catch up or want to refresh your memory, you can see the entire 13-episode first season On Demand starting Monday, March 5.

HOLLYWOOD SCENE

By Tony Rizzo

Director Barry Levinson has had untold problems with "Gotti: In the Shadow of My Father," starring John Travolta. Lindsay Lohan, mentioned to play mobster John Gotti's wife, Victoria, was passed over in favor of Travolta's wife, Kelly Preston, because of scheduling conflicts due to Lindsay's court problems. In October, financial issues almost postponed a January start, but the needed money was raised in time. Lohan also was dropped from the Linda Lovelace biopic and is now, supposedly, "in talks" to star as Elizabeth Taylor in Lifetime's "Elizabeth and Richard: A Love Story." Lindsay Lohan as Elizabeth Taylor?

City ethics commission mulls complaint policies

By DAVID SNOW

The Eagle Post

The Oak Grove Ethics Commission detailed its procedure for following through on complaints against elected officials at its meeting on Thursday. Part of that procedure is to make available a complaint box in the utilities office similar to the one inside City Hall in the Oak Grove Municipal Building on Pembroke-Oak Grove Road.

Commission chair Jan O'Brien emphasized the need for Oak Grove citizens to know that the Ethics Commission is in place to handle complaints against city officials.

"We want to make the public more aware that we are here," he said. "I don't think anybody knows about this commission or what its functions are or what we do."

"For example, if you have a supervisor and an employee, if they have a complaint, they need to know that they can come here and file a complaint. We can look at it if it is an ethics issue or something along those lines or a harassment of some form, an abuse of power, that sort of thing."

There are also complaint cards and complaint forms to help people through the complaint procedure.

People can also file a grievance online by sending an e-mail to ethics@oakgroveky.org.

Other members of the Oak Grove Ethics Commission are Renie Brassfield and Paula Williams.

The Oak Grove Ethics Commission was established by city ordinance on Nov. 25, 1994, and revised on Feb. 7, 1995.

The Ethics Commission was reorganized last November after the city went for six years without such a group. The previous Ethics Commission last met in 2005 and disbanded that year.

The Oak Grove Ethics Commission will meet quarterly on the last Thursday of every third month at 5:30 p.m. at City Hall. The commission will next meet on March 29.

The 14-year-old admitted to detectives that she was the author of both threats, Ray said.

After reading the email, school administrators chose not to immediately evacuate students on police instruction, said Heather Aubin, spokeswoman for the school district.

"The ultimate decision was made by the school district after consulting with police," Aubin said.

Valor Hall to host comedy show fundraiser

By DAVID SNOW
The Eagle Post

Fresh off the heels of the Feb. 25 “Jammin’ for Disaster” fundraising concert for the American Red Cross, Valor Hall Conference and Event Center will host another fundraising show on March 10.

A&S All-Support Inc. will present “The Etta May Comedy Show,” featuring the comedy stylings of Etta May and “Big John” Richardson.

There will be two shows, one at 6 p.m. and one at 8:30 p.m., and the doors will open at 5 p.m. Shows are open to those 18 or older, and tickets are $20 for military with ID, $25 for general admission and $35 for couples. Tickets can be purchased through the websites www.ascomedylive.com or www.asallsupport.org. All online tickets can be retrieved at the will-call booth at Valor Hall. Military members must show their ID when picking up the tickets.

The show will be performed in the 101st Ballroom area, with concessions in the Rendezvous Hall dining area.

All proceeds will benefit A&S All-Supply of Clarksville, Tenn., which helps bridge the employment gap for individuals with disabilities through the use of skill assessments, placement services and job coaching.

“They try to help disabled people find work by teaching them needed skills so they can become employed and be somewhat self-sufficient,” said Valor Hall events planner Maria Guerra. “That’s their ultimate goal, and that’s why their funding is based so much on donations and fundraising.”

“They work very closely with the local business community to help pair up individuals with skills and place them within the community,” said assistant events planner Lauren Wanjon. “They want to help them be more independent.”

May was named the 1999 Funniest Female Stand-Up Comic at the American Comedy Awards. She has been featured on CMT’s “Southern Fried Chicks,” Showtime’s “Aspen Comedy Festival” and “The 15th Anniversary of the Comedy Store” as well as TV sitcoms like “Hanging with Mr. Cooper,” “The Jeff Foxworthy Show” and “My Two Dads.” She has also appeared on “Oprah.”

She is a regular on radio’s “Bob and Tom Show” as well as XM and Sirius satellite radio comedy channels.

Opening for May is “Big John” Richardson, whose slogan is “Clean Comedy for Dirty Minds.” Richardson has appeared on the Fox and WB networks, and has also been featured on radio’s “Bob and Tom Show.”

A native of Clarksville, Richardson is strikingly tall. His website describes him as “Six-foot-four from his head to his thighs, and the cross around his neck is actual size.” His comedy style has been compared to that of Bill Cosby.

Area radio personalities Lee Erwin and C.C. Carmack will emcee the show.

The comedy is only part of the fun and entertainment. There will be about 20 food vendors on hand, including alcohol and beverage sales. May is expected to sell T-shirts and CDs on-site as well, according to A&S chief development officer Krystal

Etta May (left) and “Big John” Richardson will be bringing non-stop laughs to Valor Hall Conference and Event Center with two shows on March 10. Proceeds will benefit A&S All-Support in their efforts to help the disabled become more independent. Tickets are on sale now online through A&S All-Support. Admission is $20 for military personnel (with ID), $25 for general admission and $35 for couples. The shows are open to those age 18 and older.

Falcons go down to 2nd Region opponents

By ADAM MAY

The Eagle Post

It was two tough losses last week for the Fort Campbell boys' basketball team, with both games against 2nd Region opponents.

The Falcons (4-14) fell 84-63 Thursday night on post to Trigg County (19-6).

Fort Campbell went toe-to-toe with one of the region's best teams for most of the first half, trailing 17-14 after one quarter. The game was tied at 29 with 3:02 to play in the first half when Falcon head coach John Cunningham was assessed three consecutive technical fouls and was ejected.

That turn of events resulted in a nine-point trip down the floor for the Wildcats, and Fort Campbell never tied the game or took a lead again.

The Falcons were led in scoring by Isaiah Washington's 18 points, while Rob Dingle and Michael Clayton put in 12 points each.

Trigg was led by Deonquez Nance's game-high 25 points.

The second quarter did the Falcons in the very next night in a 67-63 loss at Crittenden

County (9-16).

Fort Campbell was tied with the Rockets 15-15 after the first period, but Crittenden would outscore the Falcons 23-12 in the next eight minutes.

The Rockets won the second half 29-26 and won their ninth game of the season.

Washington was the only Falcon in double-figures with 13 points. Chase Hamilton scored eight points in the defeat.

Thomas Scott led Crittenden County with 26 points.

Fort Campbell will face Hopkins Co. Central (Thursday, 7:30 p.m., away), Madisonville-North Hopkins (Friday, time tba, home), Todd Co. Central (Monday, 7:30 p.m., away) and Crittenden County (Tuesday, 6 p.m., home) this week.

Lady Falcons pick up important win from Lyon County on post

By ADAM MAY

The Eagle Post

Winning is rarely easy, and one sign of an improving team is the ability to put an opponent away after leading for most of a game.

That's exactly what the Fort Campbell Lady Falcons (2-14) did Friday night on post, defeating Lyon County (8-16) 34-32.

Fort Campbell led for nearly the entire game, racking up a 10-point lead at halftime and leading by nine going into the fourth quarter.

That's when LCHS mounted a furious rally, cutting the lead to as little as two, but Fort Campbell ultimately put the Lady Lyons away.

Alli Tellez scored 26 of her team's 34 points, while Jenna Caraccilo scored five, Brittney Ellis had two and Cierra Laxton rounded out the scoring with one point.

Kacie Freeman led Lyon County with 11 points.

Caldwell County, Madisonville-

North Hopkins and Todd Co. Central are on this week's schedule for the Lady Falcons.

FCHS wrestling team prepares for regional at Caldwell County

By DAVID SNOW

The Eagle Post

The 1st Region wrestling meet will be held this weekend at Caldwell County High School in Princeton.

Fort Campbell senior Tim Nikolao is the top seed in the 220-pound weight class.

The meet begins on Friday with the weigh-in at 5:30 p.m. and the meet beginning around 6:30 p.m. Two rounds of wrestling will be held Friday in the CCHS gymnasium and will resume on Saturday.

On Saturday, the weigh-ins will be held at 9 a.m., with the action resuming around 10 a.m.

Admission for the regional meet is $5 per day.

Falcon head coach Anthony Shingler said his team is much improved over last year, having garnered an extra year of experience.

"I've always told the guys that, despite the seeding, anybody can beat anybody on any given day," he said. "Seeds are nice to look at, but at the end of the day, you could upset anybody."

Shingler said that perennial favorite Union County will be the team to beat at the regional this year.

He added that he was looking forward to seeing if Fort Campbell can improve on last year's fourth-place regional finish.

"We've improved a lot; we were really young last year," Shingler said. "That's one thing I said coming into this year, that it would be crucial, the experience that we gained from last year."

TRUTH IN SCRIPTURE
Noah in the Ark
God's instructions to Noah were to take into the ark that he had built two of each animal on the earth and 7 of each animal that was clean and to be eaten for food.
With all safe in the ark, the rains came, for forty days, and the water covered the earth.
Noah and his family were secure in the ark, as it moved about on the water.
All things that were on the earth that breathe, died: birds, and cattle and beast and every creeping thing that creeps on the earth, and every man. Only Noah and his 3 sons and the 4 wives remained alive. And the waters remained upon the earth 150 days.

Boys & Girls Club considering teams for Oak Grove kids

By DAVID SNOW
The Eagle Post

The Boys and Girls Club of Hopkinsville and Christian County hopes to have two football teams from Oak Grove this fall for ages 8 to 11.

“What I would like to do is expand,” said Terrence Davis, the program director for the Boys and Girls Club. “We’d have one 8-to-9 team and one 10-11 team to practice, populated by just Oak Grove kids.

“I live in Crofton, and it’s the same for the kids in Oak Grove: It’s hard for them to get here and practice, but if it’s in those two communities, then I think it would be easier to get those kids.

“They would only have to come into town (Hopkinsville) on game day, which is Saturday. For two hours, they have a game, and they would practice in Oak Grove.”

Davis said the teams would have 22 players and three coaches, all from Oak Grove, on each team.

The idea is still in the planning stages, but Davis wants to see it reach fruition.

“The kids down there never get to do anything, sports-wise — unless they are very lucky — until they get to middle school,” he said. “The more parents that are interested, the easier it is to get space and coaches and things like that.”

Davis wants parents who have children who may be interested in playing in the full-tackle league to call the Boys and Girls Club at 270-887-4020 or visit the Club at its Walnut Street location.

The Boys and Girls Club has begun registration for its Spring Passing Football League, which begins play on April 21 and runs through June 26. There will be six Saturday games and two Tuesday games.

The fall season begins on Sept. 8, with the championship game coming on Nov. 3 at the Stadium of Champions.

Information about the passing league can be obtained from the Boys and Girls Club at 270-887-4020.

Burke slated to face court-martial this week

By DAVE BOUCHER
For The Eagle Post

The latest day in court for a Fort Campbell soldier accused of killing his wife and her former mother-in-law is scheduled for later this week.

Burke, 34, is charged with two counts of murder relating to the September 2007 deaths of Tracy Burke and Karen Comer in Rineyville, a small town near Elizabethtown. Burke and Comer were allegedly killed in the presence of Burke’s two children.

Brent Burke is also charged with burglary and “conduct of a nature to bring discredit upon the armed forces,” according to an Army news release.

Tracy Burke was a nurse and worked at Jennie Stuart Medical Center until August of 2007, according to New Era reports. She reportedly filed for divorce in May of that year, claiming Brent Burke had become violent and angry after returning from a deployment to Afghanistan.

The court-martial marks the fifth trial for Burke relating to the deaths. Prosecutors in Hardin County tried Burke four times; two cases resulted in mistrials before the jury had a chance to reach a verdict, and two resulted in hung juries.

Following the last trial in June 2011, Hardin County dismissed the charges against Burke. He was sent back to Fort Campbell, where the Army brought its own criminal charges days later.

Burke went through two Article 32 hearings — the military equivalent of a civilian grand jury proceeding — before it was determined there was enough evidence to warrant a general court-martial.

The court-martial functions differently than a civilian court, Rzepka said. While the trial will involve a judge and attorneys for the prosecution and defense, the jury is different. Known as a “court-martial panel,” Rzepka said the group consists of at least five members of the military.

He was not certain about the maximum number of people allowed to serve on the panel.

While the specific panel members are chosen in the same fashion as a civilian jury, Rzepka said Burke is allowed to decide one aspect of the panel’s composition: He can choose a panel of officers only or a panel of both officers and enlisted members.

Burke can also choose to have only a judge hear the case, Rzepka added. Burke can decide before the start of the trial which format he would prefer, Rzepka said, but he was not aware if Burke had made a decision.

While the burden of proof is similar to that of civilian cases of this nature, the unanimous verdict needed in a civilian trial is not a requirement here, Fort Campbell spokesman Andrew McIntyre told the New Era in July. In a court-martial, two-thirds of the panel can render a valid guilty verdict, McIntyre said.

If Burke is found guilty, the only two possible resulting sentences are life imprisonment or the death penalty, McIntyre said. It is still unclear which penalty the prosecution will seek.

Burke recently reasserted his innocence in a response to a civil lawsuit brought by Tracy Burke’s brother.

Burke has been incarcerated in Christian County Jail since the Army brought the most recent charges.

Before the charges were field in 2007, Burke worked as a military police officer and had been in the Army 11 years, McIntyre said. He had deployed to Afghanistan at least once. The court-martial is scheduled to begin at 8:30 a.m. Monday in the court building on post, Rzepka said.

Army: Smoking increases risk

By CHANEL WEAVER
The Associated Press

Nearly one-third of active-duty service members smoke, and that figure increases among troops in a combat zone, according to the 2008 Department of Defense Survey of Health-Related Behaviors.

Most soldiers know that smoking can eventually cause lung cancer and emphysema, but one does not have to wait 20 or 30 years to experience the adverse effects of smoking.

Multiple studies by U.S. Army Public Health Command (USAPHC) show that smoking has immediate health effects such as increased injury risk and diminished physical performance.

"Past studies of Army basic trainees show the risk of injuries among soldiers who smoke was as much as 90 percent higher than non-smokers," said Michelle Chervak, senior epidemiologist at the USAPHC.

"From past data as well as analysis of recent data collected on operational units, we can definitely say that smokers have a greater risk of any injury, and more specifically, overuse injuries — damage to musculoskeletal tissue that accumulates with repetitive activities such as running," she added. "Higher injury risk is likely due to factors that impair the body's healing and repair processes."

USAPHC studies have also demonstrated that smoking negatively impacts muscle endurance, especially as soldiers get older.

"Our data show that smokers perform fewer push-ups and sit-ups on the Army Physical Fitness Test," Chervak said.

Smoking can also affect mission readiness. USAPHC studies have also shown that soldiers who use tobacco have reduced night vision and mental sharpness, and increased risk of heat and cold injuries.

Nicotine decreases oxygenated blood flow, resulting in a 30 percent reduction in night vision for normal eyes, and 50 percent reduction in those wearing corrective lenses.

Likewise, smoking also causes reduced blood flow to the extremities, which leads to more heat and cold injuries as the body is unable to cool and warm them, especially fingers and toes.

President Obama's National Prevention Strategy report states that cigarette smoking causes approximately 443,000 U.S. deaths each year. These deaths occur as a result of lung cancer, chronic bronchitis, strokes, heart attacks, emphysema and other conditions.

Second-hand smoke can also be damaging to others' health — especially children.

"If soldiers knew the effect that smoking has on their children, I think more would be encouraged to quit," said Col. Heidi Warrington, chief nurse executive at the USAPHC.

Children who are exposed to second-hand smoke are at increased risk of suffering from chronic ear infections, asthma and learning disorders, said Warrington.

The financial costs of smoking are also significant. A recent Army Times article stated that tobacco use costs the Pentagon $846 million a year in medical care and lost productivity.

More than 80 percent of adult cigarette smokers start before their 18th birthday, so a key tool to preventing tobacco addiction is to encourage smokers not to start, Warrington said.

For those who wish to reduce smoking, there is good news.

USAPHC studies show that the risk of a heart attack decreases 24 hours after stopping smoking and, after one year, the risk for heart disease is one-half that of smokers.

Because nicotine is so addictive, quitting is not easy. But those who wish to quit should not be discouraged, Warrington said.

"Any reduction in tobacco use is considered a success," Warrington said. "Soldiers who are having trouble quitting should focus on reducing the amount of cigarettes they smoke — with an ultimate goal of achieving a tobacco-free lifestyle."

Many military medical treatment facilities offer tobacco cessation classes and physicians can prescribe medications to help smokers kick the habit.

Redistricting held up

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's filing deadline to run for legislative seats became a moving target again on Monday when a judge did not immediately rule on a lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of newly redrawn district boundaries.

Franklin County Circuit Judge Phillip Shepherd said he expects to enter a ruling in the case by mid-week. Shepherd has already extended the filing deadline once, and said he may do it again.

"I will say that I am very mindful of the fact that this decision is one that is time-sensitive," Shepherd said at the conclusion of the four-hour hearing on Monday.

For more than a month, Kentucky's Legislature has focused almost entirely on the contentious debate over redrawing legislative and congressional district boundaries. Other issues have been stalled while the courts work to decide whether the legislative process should be struck down and while lawmakers continue to battle over congressional lines.

Redistricting occurs every 10 years to account for population changes reported in the U.S. Census. The latest count found that the state's overall population grew from 4 million to 4.3 million from 2000 to 2010, forcing new boundaries to be drawn so that each congressman and legislator represents an equal number of people.

Prescription drugs is a statewide issue

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Prescription drug abuse deserves the same level of attention in the Kentucky legislature as some other issues that have captured most of the headlines over the past month, Gov. Steve Beshear said Monday.

Beshear said he doesn't want "the scourge" of prescription abuse, blamed for more than 80 overdose deaths a month in the state, to be ignored as lawmakers finalize re-districting and begin drafting the state budget.

"The rising abuse of prescription drugs is literally killing our people," Beshear said during a Capitol press conference. "It's causing untold pain and misery in our families. It's robbing our economy of productive workers. It's filling our jails, our hospitals and our treatment centers. And it's draining our state budget."

Beshear and other top state officials, including Attorney General Jack Conway, House Speaker Greg Stumbo and Senate Majority Leader Robert Stivers II, pushed for pending legislative initiatives, including one that would limit Oxycontin and other powerful painkillers to no more than 30-day allotments in an effort to limit the supplies of the drugs to addicts.

Stumbo filed legislation last week that calls for the state's prescription monitoring program, known as KASPER, to be placed under the jurisdiction of the attorney general, the state's top law enforcement officer. The monitoring program is currently administered by the Kentucky Cabinet for Health and Family Services, a social services agency. The change would give law enforcement and prosecutors quick access to key information that could identify unscrupulous physicians.

State Sen. Jimmy Higdon, R-Lebanon, filed a separate bill aimed at curbing the number of pain management clinics that he blames for supplying addicts with painkillers.
